

EDITORIAL

ARA is an international scientific journal, aimed to promote debate, construction of knowledge and dissemination of scientific research results related to the four fields of Anthropology - sociocultural, archaeological, biological and linguistic.

The journal has five sections: original articles, translations, theses and dissertations summaries, book reviews and photo essays. In each of them, we accept original pieces in Portuguese, English, Spanish and French.

ARA is semi-annual, but we can receive special editions during the year, including dossiers. All articles are peer-reviewed, in the form of blind review. Any researcher interested in sharing his/her research with the academic public from Amazonica can submit articles. All articles must be submitted via the journal's website, hosted in the UFPA journals portal, at <http://periodicos.ufpa.br/index.php/amazonica>.

The journal has 27 issues since its release in 2009. Currently, the journal is in Volume 14 Number 1 of 2022. According to the last evaluation of Capes, ARA has a Qualis B1. In addition to Qualis Capes, we are also actively working for the most appropriate indexing in other indexes such as Scielo.

The journal's responsible editors are Daiana

Travassos Alves and Julia Otero dos Santos, professors at the Federal University of Pará. This edition had Brenda Bandeira de Azevedo, a graduate from the Anthropology Graduate Program at the Federal University of Pará, and Maurício Borba Filho, associated with Anthropology Graduate Program at the Federal University of Pará, as assistant editors. Maurício Borba Filho is also a translator editor (English). Diana Trujillo is a translator editor (Spanish) and Karlene Bianca de Oliveira a communication and dissemination editor, both are associated with the Anthropology Graduate Program at the Federal University of Pará.

In addition, the following professors at the Federal University of Pará act as section editors: Beatriz de Almeida Matos, Edna Alencar, Hilton Pereira da Silva, Katiane Silva and Pedro José Tótora da Glória, articles editors; Eliane Costa, editor of theses and dissertations summaries and book reviews; and Flávio Bezerra Barros, editor of photographic essay.

The editorial board also includes Ândrea Kely Campos Ribeiro dos Santos, professor at the Federal University of Pará; Anna Curtenius Roosevelt, professor at the University of Illinois; Antonio Carlos de Souza Lima, professor at the Federal
